Red Cross to Collect Peach Stones, Etc.

Lives of thousands of American soldiers, facing German shells and poison gas, depend on the response of the Americans at home to the Red Cross and government request for collection of fruit pits and nut shells.

Every Red Cross Chapter in the nation, the Food Administration and other government agencies are co-operating to get many millions of the nut shells and fruit pits or seeds.

Restaurants, cafes, stores and other places under the jurisdiction of the Food Administration have been urged to place barrels or boxes in their shops where the general public can deposit the fruit pits and nut shells.

In some of the cities in the Gulf Division of the Red Cross, stores have placed barrels at the entrance and placed signs nearby urging the pedestrians to "bring their fruit seeds, pits and nut hulls here." Moving picture shows are to be asked by all Red Cross publicity officials to show slides, urging the people to save the material, while newspapers are urged to print stories telling of the need for the collection.

Engineer's Wife Tells Experience

Mrs. Joiner's Health Was Completely Broken—Gains 2 Pounds and Is Well and Strong

"I have just finished my third bottle of Tanlac and have gained thirty-five pounds," said Mrs. Wilhelmina Joiner, wife of a well-known engineer on the M. D. & S. railroad, who resides at 761 Mulberry street, Macon, Ga.

"For nearly two years, I suffered from the effects of nervous prostration which was brought on by nervous indigestion," she continued. "My condition got so bad that I couldn't eat any kind of heavy food, and it seemed like the harder I tried to get well, the worse I got. I tried every medicine and treatment that I could find, but continued to go down until I was alarmed and thought that nothing could ever help me."

"It wasn't hardly any time after I started taking Tanlac until I began to improve, and have improved ever since until I am now as well and strong as anybody. My nerves got better right away and I began to be able to rest at night. My appetite returned and I can eat anything I want and everything tastes good. I am only too glad to tell what Tanlac has done for me, for it certainly has been a blessing."

Tanlac is sold in Okolona by W. E. Bearden and by one established agency in every town, adv

THE NATIONAL SECURITY LEAGUE AND ITS WORK

By COL. CHARLES E. LYDECKER, President of the National Security League.

The National Security League calls for the co-operation and membership of all men and women throughout the United States who approve its work.

Col. C. E. Lydecker.

It has undertaken and is performing. From its organization it has advocated action, not lip service. It was created to secure such preparedness in men and material as would compel respect for the pronouncements of a government in declaring the principles of right and justice between men and nations and not leave them empty words. Its extraordinary work, while at first unappreciated, has now the recognition of all who are earnest in carrying on the war to victory and who believe in the supreme duty to give the most and the best to our brave sons who are offering their lives on the battle front. We know who urged non-preparedness. They were Pro-Germans or dullards. The war came and has given us Universal Service. No praise is too great for the men of the land in their response to the order for duty in the selective draft, due in great part to the prior teaching by the National Security League of the duty so to take the order.

The work is now on to create the heart in every one to win the war against all sacrifice and hardship. How can that be done; how can war weariness and war laxness be prevented? The heart to win must be founded on comprehension and will; comprehension of the diabolical, dishonest, pitiless, cruel, rapacious, venal, un-American German Kultur, which would destroy the liberty of men and the life of small nations in a selfish attempt at aggrandizement founded on vanity and cupidity. That being understood by our people, we must elevate the character of Americans to the point to hasten to make sacrifice to destroy the enemy or to bring him to terms.

200,000 Teachers. The League, to do this, has organized in the Summer Schools for Teachers courses by which 200,000 teachers have had the instruction of our teachers and our literature.

A campaign to get the best Congress in progress. Fusion, where serious danger exists, that a soft or too pacifistic, or too extreme, social philosopher shall get into Congress, is urged, and knowledge of those who have failed to stand the test is being disseminated. The people are being aroused to the danger of a Bolshevik peace, which means disaster as well as treason.

Street Speakers' Squadrons.

The League is conducting a campaign for Street Speakers' Squadrons for every city. Speakers by the hundred are organized to talk at street corners and other vantage ground to the people who eagerly congregate, to listen, hector, heckle or applaud. Those who do not read learn by hearing, and no more effective way to create ambition and patriotic feeling and to neutralize the anarchistic poison that goes to the people in crowded districts can be found than going right to them with the word.

In these and other activities I ask support of the National Security League from all men and women who approve the work and can join therein.

Dig up the coin and bury the Hun.

Why We Fight

No. 5

Because Germany Menaces the Freedom of the World and Russia Can no Longer Resist

By CLARENCE L. SPEED, Secretary of the War Committee of the Union League Club of Chicago

We are in this war with Germany because it is a war for freedom more truly than ever before was a war fought for the liberty of man. In times past, it is true, men have fought for freedom from oppressors. Sometimes they have won and sometimes they have lost. But always there has been a place in this big world where those who had lost in the struggle at home might go and find a country where they might enjoy the liberty they loved.

Now all is different. If the forces which are fighting for freedom in this war are defeated, there will be no place in the whole world to which they may go to find a refuge from Prussian domination. Every land under the sun will be directly or indirectly under control of the victor; and if the victor is autocracy, freedom perishes.

The land where freedom is most imminently menaced by the legions of Prussian autocracy, at this moment, is the land where unwonted freedom temporarily has run riot and has lost the power to fight for itself—Russia. We are fighting for the freedom of Russia, and must continue to fight for it until Russia learns what freedom means, and is again able to fight. If we do not, freedom will die in Russia; Prussian autocracy will rule and exploit the country for its own benefit; and the very forces which overthrew the czar will be turned against the freedom not only of themselves, but of other lands.

In years gone by, when the forces of revolution were showing themselves here and there in Russia, they had the sympathy of America in spite of the methods of terrorism of which we did not approve. When the czar and the Kaiser, leaders of autocracy, were locked in a death grapple, Russia still had our sympathy, because she was fighting on the side of those who were seeking to safeguard the world from Prussian militarism.

When the czar was deposed over night American feelings were mixed. There was joy at the downfall of an old, and sometimes cruel autocracy, but there was fear that Russia would become too disorganized to fight further, coupled with the thought that perhaps the revolution had come too soon to be effective.

Then followed the brief regime of Kerensky, when it began to look as though freedom in Russia might be an organized freedom, prepared to fight for its rights, and all America hailed the Russian revolution as a blessing. It had become absolutely correct to say that the war was a war of democracy against autocracy. No pro-German could longer point to the czar, whenever an argument arose.

Finally came the bolshevik revolution, in which Kerensky was overthrown. Russian industry and Russian society were disorganized, and Russian armies ceased to fight. The Kaiser's armies pressed on unopposed, took what they desired in spite of a signed peace, and Russia appeared to be about to pass completely under control of Germany. America stood aghast at the prank freedom had played, and American opinion turned largely against Russia, but thinking men refused to give up hope. Russia was and still is incapable of offering resistance, but Russia is not resigned to autocracy. It devolves upon others to fight for the freedom Russia must have.

The experience of other nations has been that men who loved freedom were willing to fight for it, and to die for it if necessary. The Russian attitude of nonresistance was something new in the world, and is hard to understand. The bolshevik represented the extreme idea of liberty. To them freedom meant not the right of the majority to choose their form of government, but the right of the individual to be free from all forms of governmental restraint. They would tear down the old order completely, at one stroke, and set up the millennium. They would divide the land, the factories and the tools among the workers, and have no masters henceforth.

Even in Russia, however, there were dissenters. Some took up arms; and the bolshevik, who fought the Germans not at all, fought their brothers more ferociously. The result was anarchy, lawlessness, massacre, the disorganization of the railways and the failure of the food supply. The millennium refused to come at the mere decree of the bolshevik. It was shown that there must be organization and government of some sort.

Russia will no longer fight side by side with her former allies. So insidious has been the German propaganda that, in many instances, Russian hatred of the allies seems to be deeper than hatred of Germany.

Therefore the United States cannot render direct aid to the struggling people of Russia. She cannot send them armies and supplies, for they have refused to do battle for themselves. To fight for Russia she must fight on the western front. She must do her share toward humbling the Kaiser, and forcing him to relinquish his grasp on the East.

That is why we cannot talk peace with Germany as long as the Kaiser has one single Russian province under his heel.
